Cardiff Council Issue 173 June 2015

Major changes to city's waste collections set for July launch

CHANGES to your recycling and waste collections are being introduced this summer.

The changes, due to begin at the end of July, will affect the majority of households in the city and will include:

- smaller black bins for most households across the city;
- bespoke, Council-issued waste bags for areas that don't receive new black bins;
- new green bins for garden waste for some households;
- single-use biobag scheme for garden waste replaced with re-useable sacks in areas that don't get or already have green bins;
- changes to collection days in some areas.

Food waste collections, however, will not change and will continue to be collected weekly, as will green recycling bags.

The measures are being introduced to encourage recycling and to reduce the amounts of waste you throw away. They are designed to help the Council hit demanding recycling targets set by the Welsh Government, which carry heavy fines if not achieved.

The Council's recycling rate is currently projected to hit 53 per cent, but Welsh Government has set a recycling target of 70 per cent by 2025. For each 1% missed the Council can be fined £400,000.

Councillor Bob Derbyshire, Cabinet Member for Environment, said: "We need everyone's help to reach the challenging recycling targets. The Welsh Government wants Wales to be the highest recyclers in Europe, which is absolutely the right thing to do from an environmentally sustainable point of view.

"I will ensure that we rise to this challenge by delivering a recycling waste strategy for the medium term which is fit for purpose, will reduce the amount of waste people throw away and bring about increased recycling rates for our city. I will continue to work closely with Welsh Government to ensure our ambitions continue to be realised.

"The city's recycling rate has increased from single figures to over 53 per cent recycling in the last decade. However, as we strive towards the 70 per cent target for 2025 the scale of the challenge obviously increases.

"I would like to thank everyone who is already recycling for our city and encourage them to do more if they can.

"I urge all those who are not already doing so to think before you throw.

"If we do not meet these targets, large fines will be incurred – and your money is better spent on other vital public services that we provide. Your contribution does matter both in terms of the environmental benefits and reducing the risk of financial penalties on the Council."

All properties impacted in the city will receive a letter and leaflet through their door. Please look out for your letter and leaflet, and read it to see how the changes will affect you. You can also visit www.cardiff.gov.uk/recyclemore for information on the changes and don't forget our handy infographic (opposite) which explains the main changes.

In future the Council will also be applying a charge for bins and re-useable garden waste sacks if they need replacing. Food waste caddies, green recycling bags and food waste liners will continue to be provided free.

Recycling targets mean big changes to waste collections

Ahead of the changes, Capital Times swapped a County Hall desk for a seat in the cab of a 26 tonne truck to find out more about the challenges faced by the recycling & waste collection crews and the forthcoming changes to the way waste is collected in our city.

• Just some of the waste we found with the collection crews when we joined them on

IT'S a windy Wednesday in May and I'm ready to get my hands dirty.

My shift starts at 2pm at Lamby Way, the 'headquarters' of the Council's waste operations and the place is a hive of activity. The 6am shift has just finished and the 2pm crews are preparing for the second shift of the day that will take them up to 10pm.

The fleet of collection trucks - with around 80 workers - is lined up waiting to leave but before they do, each driver carries out a vehicle check to ensure their wagon has no damage, is road-worthy and in full working order ahead of the next eight-hour stretch.

I join driver Neil Mardell as he circles his truck, checking the tyres, the brake lights, the bin lifts at the back and so on. A thumbs-up from Neil and together with his crew, he's off.

First up, I'm heading to Riverside and Grangetown with Neil and his crew, Liam Casey and Mikey Fenton.

The team are collecting green recycling bags today and we talk about the importance of recycling and how everyone in the city has to redouble their efforts to reduce the amount of waste they put in their black bins or bags, recycling more to contribute to the tough targets set for the Council by Welsh Government.

This year, the Council's recycling target is 58 per cent of the total waste collected in the city but by 2025, the figure rises to 70 per cent. For every 1 per cent of that target missed, the authority incurs a £400,000 fine from Welsh Government and with public services already under tremendous pressure from dwindling budgets and increased service pressures, that is a scenario Cardiff can scarce afford.

That's why the Council's recycling message of "Get out of the black, move into the green' is crucial and why Neil, at the wheel of his truck describes himself and his co-workers pounding the streets as 'ambassadors' who have a key role to play in communicating the changes that will be introduced at the end of July.

"It's extremely important for people to recycle," he says. "It helps the environment. Our job is to pass that information on to the public – we are on the frontline.

"People need to understand why it's so important to recycle. Sometimes you have to tell them six or seven times. I think a lot of people don't recycle because they think someone else is paying or don't know and some may not care and I'm sure they would be more likely to spend an extra 10 minutes one morning sorting out their rubbish, if it meant they weren't going to get hit in the pocket.

"This can be a challenging job but that's what I love about it."

In just one street we visit, it is clear to see the challenges faced by the crews as they quickly scan the piles of green recycling bags checking for 'contamination, which are items that can't be recycled in Cardiff.

"I've seen clothes, nappies, teddies and even a toaster in green recycling bags," says Mikey Fenton.

Piles of acceptable green recycling bags are put into the back of the truck, while bags stuffed full of old carpet pieces, a coat, a van's smashed wing mirror and a toilet cistern are put to one side. Mikey slaps a contaminated recycling sticker on those bags and what remains will be left behind for the enforcement and street cleansing teams to deal with.

Next I head south across the city towards Butetown to meet a crew collecting food waste. Food waste collections will remain unchanged this summer and by using these weekly collections properly, households can contribute to driving down the amount of waste that goes in black bins or bags, and increase what they recycle.

From spending time with the food waste crew it's clear to see firstly, how important it is to take part in the food waste service and secondly, how easy it is. All residents need is a kitchen caddy, food waste liners to line their kitchen caddy and a kerbside caddy to put their full food caddy liner in for collection. There are lots of benefits - the food waste is collected every week which takes away the waste that smells

In areas that don't receive new 140L Wheelie bins…

- Each household will receive bespoke, Council issued red striped waste bags twice a year. You will receive enough to put out up to 3 per fortnightly collection. You cannot buy them in shops. No other type of bags will be collected by the Council
- Green recycling bags will continue to be collected as normal every week
- Continue using your brown kerbside caddy for food waste every week
- Bio-bags for garden waste and shredded paper will be replaced with reusable garden sacks. You will need to to sign up if you want to receive these.

their rounds. There was contaminated rubbish in recycling bags and recyclable waste in black bins which shows how much more education is needed to improve our recycling rates the most and there is no need to keep it in your black bin or bags for a fortnightly collection.

Switching from the food waste collection, we meet up with driver Tony Sheppard and his crew Calum Robinson and Darren Power in Llandaff North on their black bag/bin collection - the waste stream that will see considerable changes in July.

Around 4,500 households in the city that don't currently have bins will receive a new 140L black bin and a 240L green bin for garden waste.

A further 5,500 will receive a new 140L black bin, and will be able to order re-useable garden waste sacks.

In addition, 90,000 households with a 240L black bin will have those exchanged for smaller 140L bins.

Any household that doesn't receive a new black bin will be provided with bespoke, Council issued red striped waste bags. They will be delivered twice a year, and properties will have enough to put out up to three per fortnightly collection. These bags cannot be bought in shops. Black bags, bin liners or carrier bags etc. will no longer be collected by the Council.

Darren has been working for the Council for nine years and he laughs as he recalls some of the items he's been asked to collect including fridges, cookers and even gas bottles.

And when it comes to this summer's changeover, he says: "Smaller bins, or a limit on the number of Council issued bespoke bags residents can put out, is coming across the city. Everyone will need to reduce their waste and recycle more. Many people are doing it really well already so I don't see why more people can't."

On the same street, I take a peek into a black bin waiting for the crew to collect it and find cardboard and newspaper – materials that can be recycled and should be presented in green bags. It's a perfect illustration of Darren's point and highlights how there is so much room for improvement when it comes to recycling in our city, starting with each household, to get us "out of the black and moving into the green".

WASTE EDUCATION AND ENFORCEMENT

WE are committed to supporting people across our city through the recycling and waste changes this summer.

You will be receiving a detailed letter and leaflet through your door, explaining how changes will affect your property. If you still have questions after reading your letter and leaflet, help is at hand. www.cardiff.gov.uk/recyclemore will provide more information about how the changes will impact your property, and the service assistance we can offer.

For specific questions or concerns, you can contact C2C via c2c@cardiff.gov.uk or telephone a C2C customer service representative on 029 2087 2087.C2C is open Monday to Friday, 8:30am – 6:00pm. We have a dedicated team of waste education officers available to help. They will be door knocking across the city, and making sure you understand the changes.

They will also be holding information stands at various locations across the City – we will let you know where they will be online and through social media.

You are also able to request that they visit your household for a discussion about your individual circumstances. Their aim will be to help you recycle all you can, using our weekly food waste and recycling services.

This activity will also be supported by enforcement activity. Once education has been provided, households that continue to put their waste out incorrectly will be fined up to £100

Leader's Message

Celebrating public services in our city

JUNE 23 every year has been designated by the United Nations as Public Service Day.

THE global awareness day celebrates the value of public services to the community and highlights the contribution people who work in the sector make to our society.

Over recent months, I have spoken in this column about the unprecedented pressures faced by public services, not only in Cardiff but throughout Wales and the UK, caused by increasing demand and severe financial difficulties.

Of course those challenges remain and we continue to work with partners and communities to explore alternative ways of delivering sustainable services that meet the needs of our citizens.

Despite these issues, I believe it is vitally important to recognise the important role of public services in Cardiff whether that be in the council, the health service, the police and so on.

Regularly, I hear about examples where council staff have gone the extra mile in their role. I think we have much to be proud of and those who go above and beyond should deservedly be celebrated.

You'll have read about the waste changes that are being introduced across the city in the first few pages of this Capital Times and I also recently accompanied some of our waste crews on one of their daily collection rounds.

It was an eye-opening experience and they told me about some of the challenges they experience being on the 'front-line'.

One of the things I will take from my experience with the crew is the overwhelming sense of pride that they take in their roles. On the whole, they enjoy their jobs and can see how their public service contribution fits into the bigger picture of keeping our city going.

If you know about a City of Cardiff Council worker who has gone above and beyond the call of duty, or someone who delivers great public service, day in day out, why not let us know by emailing capitaltimes@cardiff.gov.uk

Once again, Cardiff is the place to be this summer with a host of fantastic events lined up as part of the Cardiff Festival as well as the great sporting occasions we have to look forward to, including the return of the Ashes and the first Velothon Wales.

Cardiff promises to be the events capital of the world over the weekend of June 5-7 when the Manic Street Preachers will be at Cardiff Castle, One Direction play two nights at the Millennium Stadium, the street food pop-ups will be tempting our tastebuds and Splott Warehouse will open its gates for the return of The Color Festival.

Don't forget, you can also read my blog on the Council's website at www.cardiff.gov.uk

The blog is regularly updated with news and developments going on in the city and has now been accessed over 15,936 times, from 50 countries across the world!

Bus station set to close August 1 as Central Square development gets go-ahead

WITH the recent news that Rightacres has successfully obtained planning permission for the proposed new BBC Headquarters, construction will begin on the Central Square re-development in early August.

This will mean that the existing bus station is scheduled to close on August 1, with alternative on-street arrangements put in place. The Council has worked closely with public transport operators and the taxi trade to ensure there is a smooth transition to the new arrangements for bus users, commuters, residents and visitors.

Councillor Ramesh Patel, Cabinet Member for Strategic Planning and Transportation, said: "The new bus station (interchange) is an essential part of the re-development of this part of the city. There is no doubt that this area has suffered with a poor reputation and anti-social behaviour for many years. The planned development will transform this part of the city creating a world-class gateway into the Welsh Capital.

"This will include a new bus station which will be built to the north of the existing railway line and next to Cardiff Central train station, earmarked for the Marland House and NCP car park site.

"We are working with interested groups, including cycling enthusiasts and our Access Forum which specifically looks at disability provision and access, to gain valuable input as the detailed design for the bus station is produced. The Council will continue to work with transport operators to ensure that the new arrangements are widely publicised, with staff on-street advising and guiding passengers two weeks before and after the existing bus station closes.

"A map has been produced showing all the departure and arrival changes for the bus routes affected. This map will be used in all PR material, external advertising and will be widely distributed in leisure centres, libraries, hubs, council buildings, Cardiff Central and Cardiff Queen Street train station, Tourist Information points and other outlets.

"When a decision is made on the chosen architect design for the new bus station, an exhibition will be available for residents to view and ask any questions and give their feedback.

This exhibition will move around the city, targeting areas of high footfall to give everyone the opportunity to see what the new bus station will look like and how it will be integrated into the wider Central Square Development."

Bus services - timeline to change

July 2
External advertising and communications campaign begins – leaflets available showing changes to bus services.

July 4-10
Exhibition showing the new bus station design opens to the public for feedback in Central Square

July 11-17
Exhibition moves to the top of Churchill Way

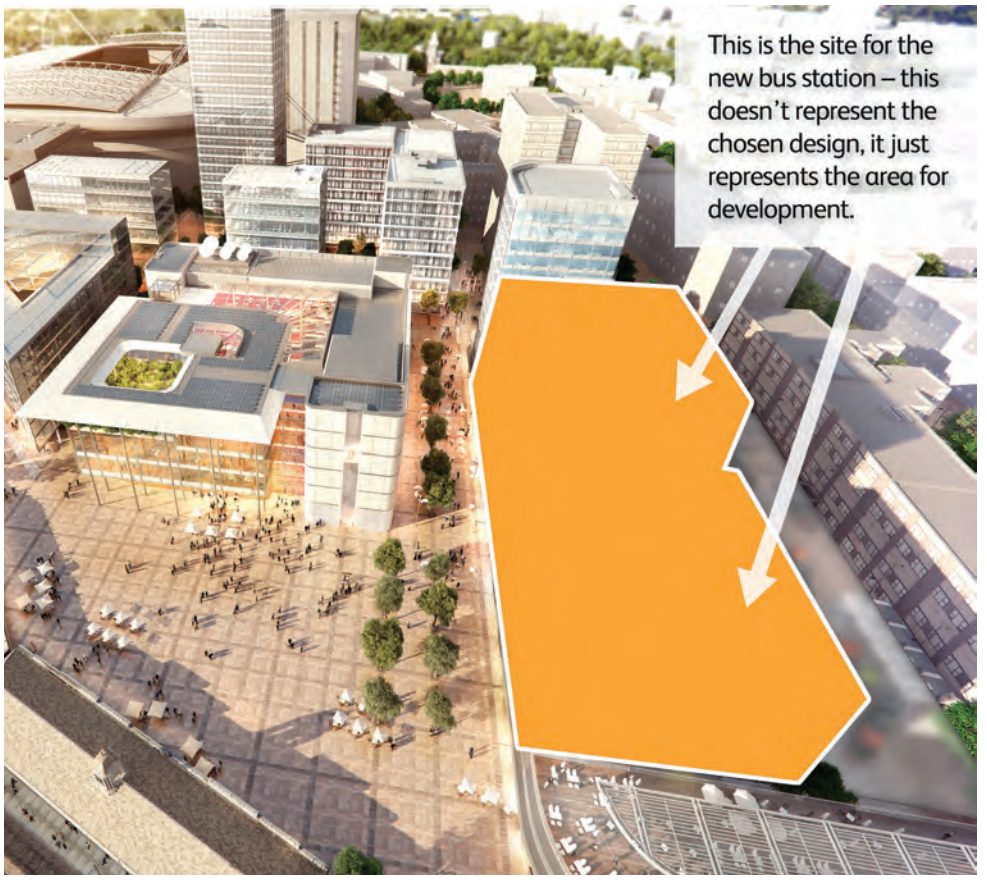
July 17-24
Exhibition moves to the Hayes.

July 24
Staff will be working in the city centre by bus stops advising passengers of the new arrangements for when the bus station closes.

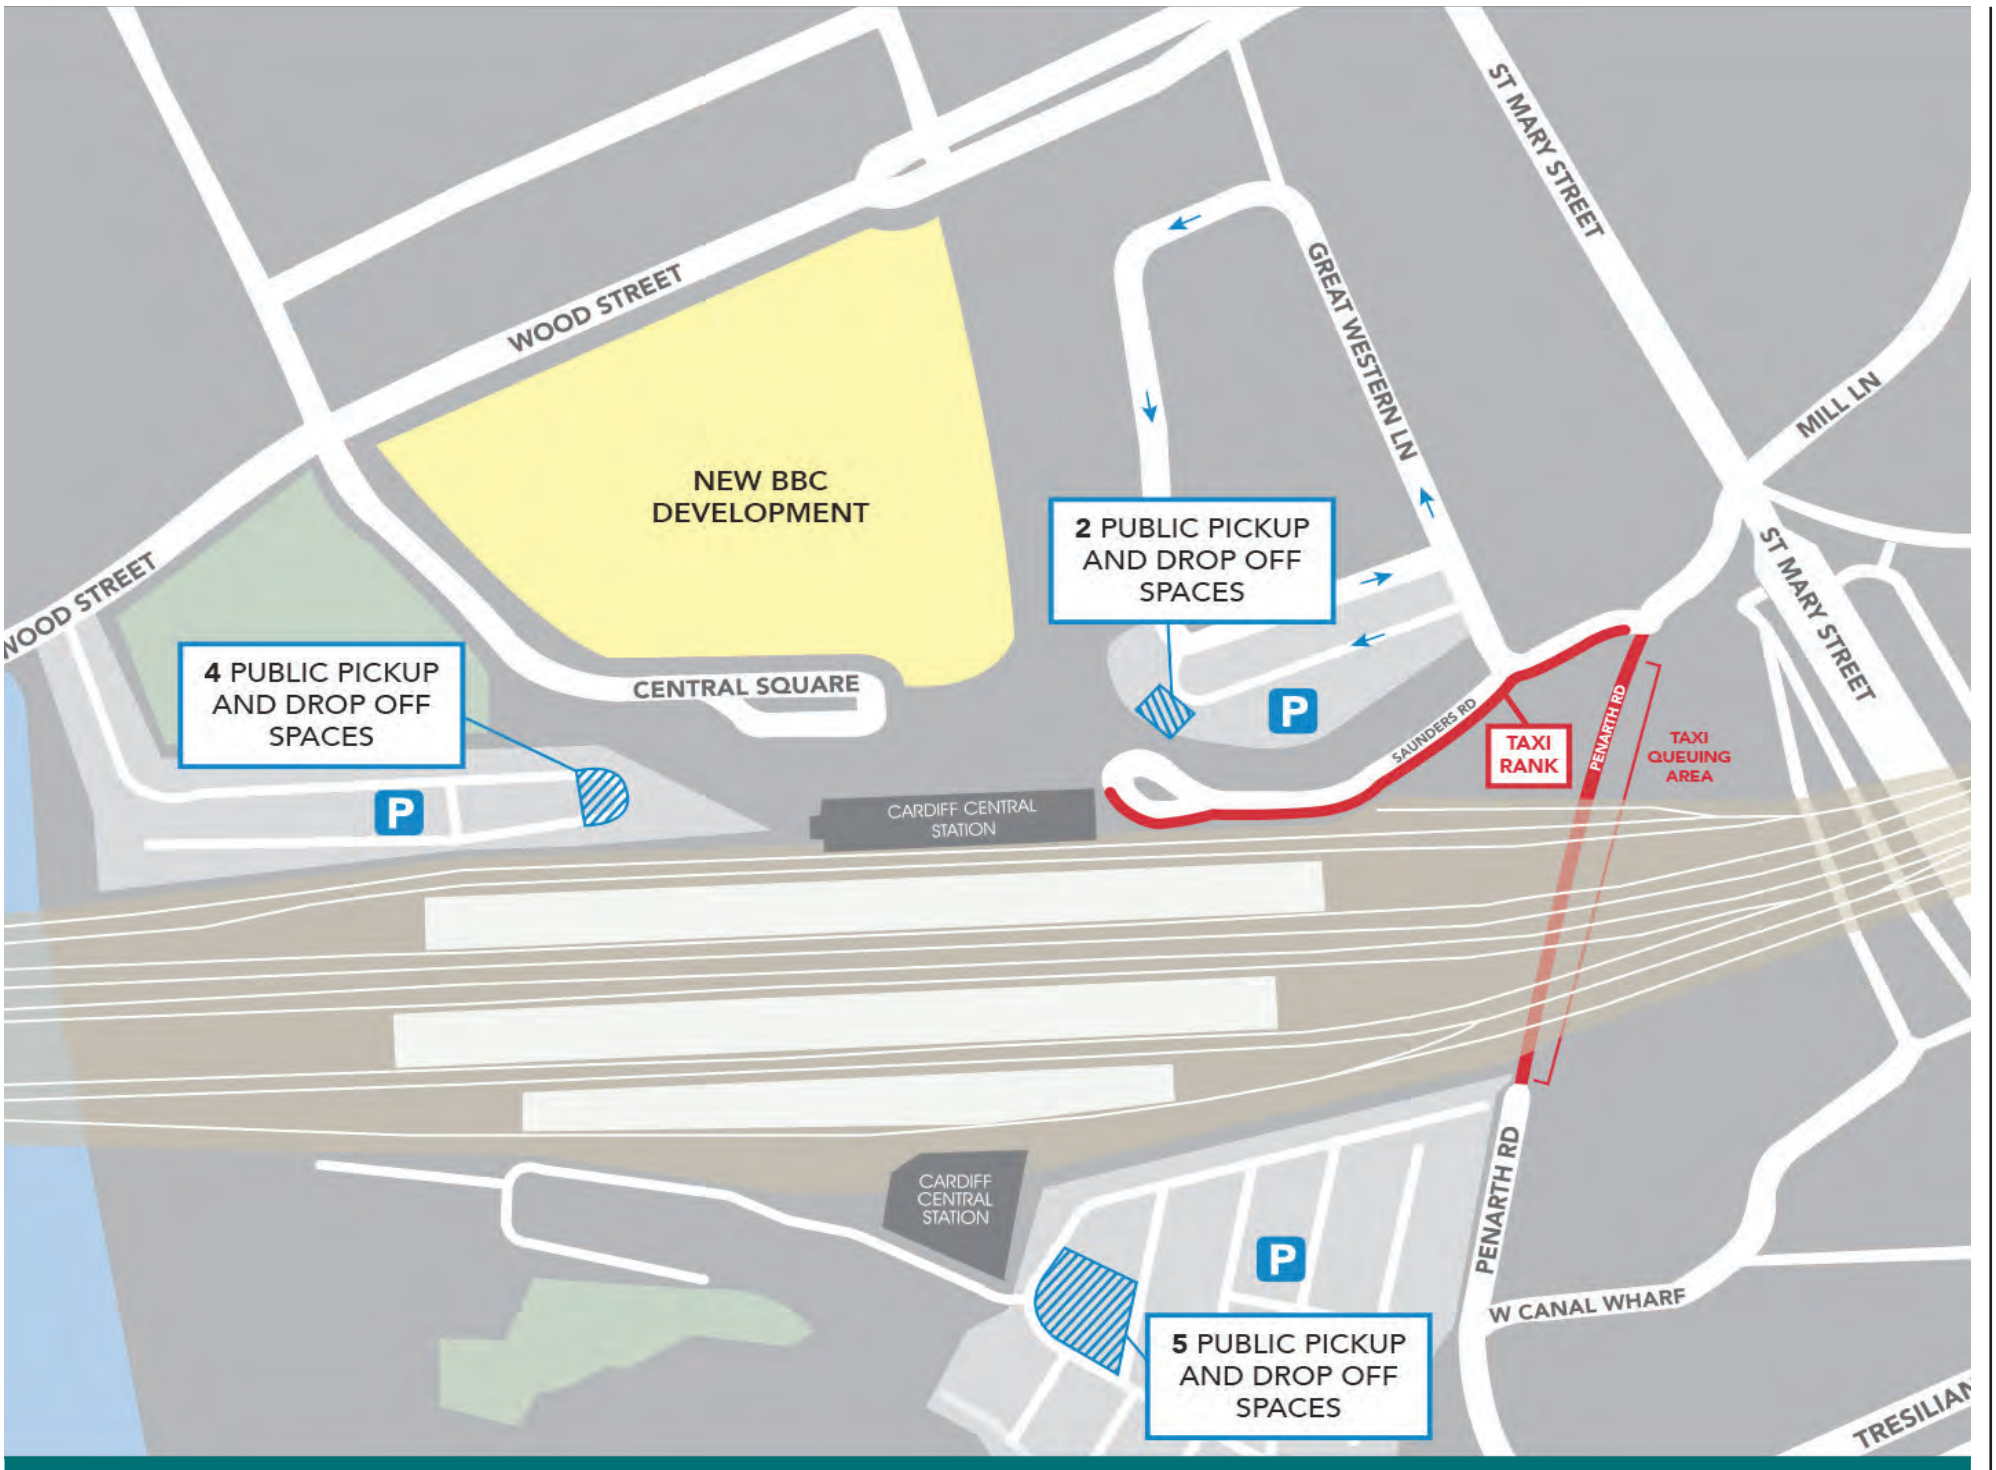
July 25-31
Exhibition moves back to Central Square

August 1
Bus station closes

August 1-14
Staff continue to work in the city centre around bus stops, advising passengers on the new arrangements.



This is the site for the new bus station – this doesn't represent the chosen design, it just represents the area for development.



- Above: Map of new pick up and drop off points for the public at the train station and the new taxi rank while work is underway. Instead of the current nine pick up/drop off facilities, 11 will be provided – Four in Riverside car park, two in Arriva Trains Saunders Road car park and five south of the station in the Network Rail car park. There will be one large taxi rank on Saunders Road which will be fed by an on-street taxi rank running along Penarth Road, under the railway bridge between the Sleeperz Hotel and the Maldron Hotel.

Eight things you need to know about Cardiff's new bus station – Fact v Fiction

Question 1: Is Cardiff getting a new bus station?

Answer: Yes. Detailed plans for a new bus station/ transport interchange will be submitted in the autumn.

Question 2: Where will the new bus station be sited then?

Answer: The new bus station will be sited on the Marland House/NCP car park site in Central Square - see picture right.

Question 3: So will I be able to cycle to the new bus station and leave my bike there if I want to catch a train?

Answer: Yes. The new bus station will have lots of space set aside for cyclists to leave their bikes. The Council intends to have covered walkways and a public realm so people can enjoy the new square.

Question 4: I've read that the bus station is too small to accommodate the number of buses that currently run through it and that it won't be big enough for the future. Is this correct?

Answer: No. The new bus station will not be too small. Currently the bus station accommodates 72 bus departures per hour. The new station will be able to accommodate 112 departures.

Question 5: I have read that you won't be able to get on or off a bus at the new bus station. Is this true?

Answer: No. You will be able to catch buses from the station and get dropped off at the station.

Question 6: When will the recommendation be made to Council on the preferred architect designs for the bus station?

Answer: A recommendation will be made to the Council's Cabinet in early July. Details on the new bus station/ transport interchange will be made available then.

Question 7: Will the public be able to visit public events to view and comment on the design of the new bus station?

Answer: Yes. There will be an office on site in Capital Square where the public can view the model for the proposed transport interchange and give their feedback before the planning application is submitted in the autumn. This office is expected to be open in early August. The bus station is scheduled to close on August 1, 2015 and reopen in December 2017.

Question 8: What will arrangements be for bus users when the bus station closes?

Answer: A detailed public engagement exercise will take place one month before the closure. Maps, leaflets, onsite advisors and an advice kiosk will all be available to show bus users the arrangements that will be put in place.

Help shape the future of the city

THE City of Cardiff Council is appealing for people to have their voices heard on the issues that matter by joining the Citizens' Panel.

The panel is currently made up of 6,000 representative members of the public across the city and is used to inform the City Council and other public services about public opinion on a wide range of issues.

Panel members complete up to five questionnaires a year either via paper questionnaires sent to their homes or electronic surveys on our website. Members are also invited to attend group discussions or workshops on particular issues they're interested in.

Feedback from the panel is included in reports to let decision makers know public opinion. Members also receive regular feedback with a summary of results of the questionnaire and how these results are being used to influence decision making.

Cabinet Member for Safety, Engagement and Democracy, Councillor Daniel De'Ath, said: "We are committed to encouraging greater involvement of residents in shaping new ways of delivering services and we are looking to broaden the membership of the Citizen Panel to ensure we hear the views of different people from different parts of the city.

"By joining the panel, people will be representing their community and be able to find out new ideas and plans for the city as well as being part of major consultation exercises such as the engagement on the 2015/16 budget proposals."

Members are asked to join the panel for three years, following which time the panel is refreshed to give other citizens the opportunity to give their views.

• Get your views heard by joining the Citizens' Panel

To join the panel you must be over 18 and live in the Cardiff local authority area. If you qualify and would like to be involved, please complete the application form online at www.askcardiff.com or email CardiffDebate@cardiff.gov.uk to request a copy.

Asking Cardiff to have its say

THE City of Cardiff Council will be asking for residents' views once again this summer in the annual Ask Cardiff survey.

The survey gives people living in the city the opportunity to have their say on a wide range of Council and Public Services.

By sharing your views with us, you will play a vital role in influencing the decision making process and shaping local services.

The Ask Cardiff survey continues to grow in popularity with approximately 3,000 of you participating in the consultation last year which helped to inform decision makers on a variety of important topics including city transport, waste management, community safety and health and social care.

This year, we hope even more people will complete the survey and you can get involved in the consultation in a number of ways. Hard copies of the questionnaire will be made available via local community buildings such as libraries, hubs and leisure centres whilst the survey will also be made available electronically for completion online.

A randomly selected sample of households from across the city will also be contacted directly by post to share their views.

Keep a look out for further details of the consultation exercise which will be made available in the coming weeks via social media including Twitter and Facebook #cardiffdebate and online at www.AskCardiff.com

• An artist's impression of how the new Eastern High could look

Major step forward for Eastern High

THE development of a brand new, innovative 21st Century 11-16 school in East Cardiff and new vocational facilities for Cardiff and Vale College (CAVC) has taken a major step forward.

In July 2014, the City of Cardiff Council confirmed the decision to build the new Eastern High school on the site of the CAVC Trowbridge campus.

With the Council now at a stage of tendering for the design and construction of the campus, CAVC has confirmed it will be vacating the existing Trowbridge site in the summer, apart from a small element of motor vehicle and engineering provision located in a self-contained block away from the construction area.

Helping to change youth services in Cardiff

More than 30 organisations have expressed an interest in working with the City of Cardiff Council to provide redesigned youth services in the city.

There has been interest from a wide variety of backgrounds and sizes, ranging from small local to large national organisations.

Organisations have been given until the end of June to apply for grant funding and proposals will be considered in June. The aim is for the newly commissioned services to be phased in from September 2015 onwards.

The council is encouraging organisations applying for grants to come up with new and innovative ways of providing their service. The aim is not to simply replicate the existing service but to develop a more diverse service closely linked to local needs, with young people being central to shaping the provision.

Over the past year, a working party which included members of the Cardiff Youth Council and consultation with young people around the city has been looking at options to protect open access youth provision as far as possible.

The redesigned service will include:

- Six 'Youth Activity Centres' across the city - acting as hubs for the Youth Service and currently continuing to be directly run by the council
- Protection for targeted services (for example, with schools)
- Retention of 'Street Based Youth Work'
- Continued provision of open access youth provision across the city - grant funded and working with the third sector and other groups

Young people have had much more involvement in developing the service, given a greater say in the way the service is provided and now have more opportunities to volunteer.

Briefings were held with third sector groups in the autumn to get feedback on the proposals and further consultation was undertaken as part of the Cardiff Debate.

Cardiff Festival – Summer in the city

A jam-packed programme of events is in store in the capital this summer as the Cardiff Festival returns with a spectacular bonanza of culture, sport, music and family entertainment.

The festival gets off to a spinning start when for the first time ever Cardiff welcomes Velothon Wales to the city on June 14. Over 15,000 cyclists, including some of the world's best riders, will set off from outside Cardiff Castle on a 140k breath-taking journey, taking in some of the most beautiful sights in South Wales before finishing back at the city centre.

More entertainment sets sail from June 19-21 as Cardiff Bay once again welcomes some of the world's best sailors to its shores for the adrenaline fuelled Extreme Sailing Series™ Act 4 presented by Land Rover.

The Cardiff International Food and Drink Festival returns to Cardiff Bay from July 10 -12 with a glorious spread of farmhouse cheese, handmade chocolates, specialist liqueurs and much, much more to tempt the taste buds. Visitors to the event can shop at one of the two food markets or relax on the street food piazza or popular champagne bar on the water edge. With music and entertainment for all the family this is one of the capital's favourite summer dishes.

The Big Gig is back from July 14-16, in partnership with Nation Radio while Cardiff Bay Beach returns to Roald Dahl Plass from July 25 until September 5 with even more seaside attractions to entertain families throughout the school holidays including an urban beach, shallow water play area and new exciting seaside rides.

Cardiff Carnival on August 8 is a free event and is the most colourful celebration of Cardiff by Cardiff - a creative explosion of sequins, glitter and feathers. Cardiff Carnival transforms the city centre with a riot of flamboyant carnival art, music and dance.

P1 Welsh Grand Prix of the Sea returns to Cardiff Bay for a second year on August 30 and 31 for the Cardiff Harbour Festival. Boasting race boats that have been designed by the best race engineers in the industry, it's hailed as the next generation of motorsport. Using the Bay as a race course, the water turns the course into an unpredictable contest that's exhilarating for racers and spectators alike.Cabinet Member for Community Development, Co-operatives and Social Enterprise, Councillor Peter Bradbury, said: "Cardiff has, yet again, lined up a fantastic programme of events this summer, showcasing all that the city has to offer, from live music and street theatre to family entertainment, food and culture. 2015 is also set to be an outstanding year for sport in the city, attracting some of the best and most renowned international and world-class sporting competitions including The Ashes, Rugby World Cup, Extreme Sailing and P1 Welsh Grand Prix of the Sea to name a few.

"We really do have it all going on, with something to attract everyone. Both residents and visitors to the city will have a great time this summer."

More events as part of the Cardiff Festival are still to be announced. For dates and information visit www.cardiff-events.com and follow on Twitter @cardiff_events

VELOTHON WALES 2015 VELOTHON WALES 2015 VELOTHON

Combining a mass participation ride alongside a professional road race, Velothon Wales is a cycling event on a scale that Wales has never before witnessed.

Starting and finishing in the heart of Cardiff City Centre, the completely closed road 140km route will take up to 15,000 cyclists on a breath-taking journey through Newport, Caerleon, Usk and the Brecon Beacons before heading South through Blaenavon, Pontypool, Caerphilly and back into Cardiff.

Please come out and support!

Come and show your Cardiff support for these 15,000 riders by heading down to a location along the route armed with banners, whistles, Welsh flags, face paint and enough energy and enthusiasm to cheer the weary cyclists across the finish line – it will be hugely appreciated!

Mae Velothon Cymru'n cyfuno ras i'r miloedd ochr yn ochr â ras ffordd broffesiynol. Dyma ddigwyddiad beicio ar raddfa sydd heb ei gweld erioed o'r blaen yng Nghymru.

Gan ddechrau a gorffen yng nghanol dinas Caerdydd, bydd y llwybr ar hyd 140km o ffyrdd cwbl gaeedig yn mynd â mwy na 15,000 o feicwyr ar siwrnai drawiadol drwy Gasnewydd, Caerllion, Brynbuga a Bannau Brycheiniog cyn troi tua'r de drwy Flaenafon, Pontypŵl, Caerffili ac yn ôl i Gaerdydd.

Dewch allan i gefnogi!

Dewch i gefnogi'r 15,000 o feicwyr yng Nghaerdydd drwy fynd i leoliad ar hyd y llwybr gyda baneri, chwibanau, fflagiau Cymru, paent wyneb a llond trol o frwdfrydedd ac egni i roi hwb i'r beicwyr blinedig gyrraedd y llinell derfyn – byddant yn ei werthfawrogi'n fawr!
